

Sheffield Street Tree Partnership

Calling all tree lovers, an exciting volunteer opportunity to improve the health, diversity, resilience and canopy cover of the street trees in Sheffield

Sheffield is known nationally for its street trees, many of them planted over 100 years ago by the far-sighted community leaders of the time. However, maintaining and increasing the canopy cover of those street trees, taking into account their increasing age and the emerging disease threats to them, requires the support of the whole community.

Sheffield's new exemplary Street Tree Strategy, being delivered by the new Sheffield Street Tree Partnership, is seeking volunteers who are passionate about trees and wildlife in general.

The volunteers will help monitor the health of existing street trees, including supporting the planting and care of new young trees. They will also help to influence the planting of additional young trees, their location and species selection, contributing to an improvement in the environment of your neighbourhood, and Sheffield as whole.

Anyone interested should click here to find out more details about the volunteer role, and how to apply.